UPPER MERIDON, Md., Dec. 3.—At 2:30 this morning a band of masked men came to the jail, overpowered the keeper and broke open the cell of Joe Vermillion, took him out and lynched him on the bridge leading to the village. As soon as J. A. Ridgeway, the jail-keeper, opened the door two men grabbed him and covered him with pistols. Then they went up stairs, broke open the cell, cut the leg-irons from the floor, leaving them on the prisoner and put a rope about his neck. They then dragged him to the bridge and immediately executed their work. His body is still hanging awaiting an inquest during the

On the night of November 22 John Vermillion, who lived near Hall's station, Baltimore & Potomac Railroad, and who was well known to the court officials of Prince George's County, was forcibly taken from his home and tied to a tree. The unknown visitors then removed his furniture and set fire to his log cabin. Fearing bodily harm the man promised to leave the vicinity immediately, whereupon he was released and left for parts unknown. He had several sons. A number of young men living near Halls and Covington were arrested on November 23 and tried before Justice Ryan, for complicity in the burning of Vermillion's cabin. He ordered them released.

INCENDIARY WORK.
On Monday, November 8, considerable excitement was caused by a fire at a station on the Baltimore and Potomac Railroad because of the burning of two large barns and a tenement house which were ~~used~~ ^{infested} by incendiaries. The Saturday night before, almost at the same hour, buildings were seen burning in the vicinity of Queen Anne's Station, and Thomas Black, who lived near Mulliken's Station, suffered the greatest loss. In his barn were stored 10,000 pounds of tobacco and his entire crop of hay and fodder. About 9 o'clock this building lay in ashes. At 9:30 a barn on the same line, situated near the residence of the magistrate, who acquitted the young man brought before him for assaulting Varmillion, which contained this year's crops, together with farming implements, was seen to be on fire. Though every assistance was rendered, the fire could not be controlled. A small unoccupied house belonging to James Hamilton was also burned.

THE ARREST.
On the theory that the violations were not the result of revenge, but of jealousy in the case of the young men, it was determined to arrest the whole family of Vermillions, who had been living in the same place for many years. A tramp, giving his name as William Wright, arrested he had in his possession a seven-shooter and threatened any one approaching him with out of revenge. The father of the family, said he was at the residence of ex-Gov. Bowie when the affair happened. Consequently, the father of the Vermillions is being taken to the station and arrested. Mr. John, Jr., George and C. Joseph Vermillion, all grown men and the fathers of the family, are being taken to the station. One of the Vermillions, was also taken into custody. John Vermillion, Jr., told the officers that he was not in the city at the time of the trouble. John said that on Saturday night, he was at the residence of C. Joseph, who had been drinking in the evening. He said he and threatened to get even with those who were drinking in the city. He said the affair of the night before (Friday), when the Vermillion's house was burned by a band of desperadoes, was the result of the same cause. He said he was on his promise to leave the neighborhood. Both the father, who was in John's company, and the other, who was in John's company, were taken to the station. The father was taken from carrying out the threat, whereupon he

HE STARTED THE FIRE
at 11:30 returned to the house and asked to be admitted, carrying in his hand a coal oil lantern. He told John that he had a little fire of his own. He immediately left and nothing was known of him until he was arrested. Bell, the son-in-law, was charged with burning his own house, which he rented from James Hamilton. He denied the charge and said Joe did it after leaving the barnes. Many thought that Joe would be hanged but the jury's verdict was acquittal and at that time about Mulliken was so great that fears of violence were entertained.

The Frederickson Frands.

NEW YORK, Dec. 3.—Inspector Byrnes' watchful eye has been upon the reports of the great land swindle out West ever since the Chicago dispatches announced that Frederickson, the head of the firm that is accused of making away with nearly $1,000,000, had fled East. The movements of the fugitive have been quietly traced and watched by Inspector Byrnes' men, pending a demand for his arrest from the Chicago authorities. It is known to the fact that Frederickson came to New York about a week ago, and the persons whom he visited in this city in Brooklyn, together with the business he had with them, are matters of police record. The investigation into the case of the suspected man who goes to prove true the suspicion that he is a swindler, is not a matter of common knowledge more than he is the fact that he was in financial straits when he came here. He fled from his country of birth, and he was not in the country on some Western securities from his friends in Brooklyn, but failed. The security was not good.

As the son-in-law of the Danish Premier, Bishop Moulard, in 1888, the year of the Schleswig-Holstein war, he was a man of high mind and political power and his advancement was rapid. He became a professor of the University of Copenhagen, and his industry and readily found investors in his gigantic schemes of beet-sugar manufacture and in the iron mines of Sweden. The Frederiksen—a large family name—were in the business of iron miners and their wealth was invested in the enterprise. A sudden drop in the price of iron ore, however, ruined the business, and they were swept away. All the Frederiksen were made poor, except a single brother who had been in the United States, and had been including the Professor, came to America. He, the first, later started an English business in the city of New York. His name was announced out in to his Western land enterprise. The brilliancy of the planning was such that the people of the United States and the Canadians were wretched as in his Danish enterprises. Frederiksen probably never knew the difference between the two. He made large sales and spent money freely. Sharper minds saw to it, and the bulk of receipts went into his hands. The business was a success. Proof of Frederiksen's innocence of swindling intentions is found in the assertion that

The Hurley Bank Robbery

ASHLAND, Wis., Dec. 10.—The examination of the alleged Hurley Bank robbers was begun yesterday before Judge Oaklins. The cases are to be heard separately. E. W. Baker, Ironwood, was arraigned first. Several witnesses were examined. The money shown by Gustafson, the oldest of the lot, was the money in the vault and how the robbery must have been committed, the prosecution proceeded to develop a very strong case against the saloon-keeper. Baker, it was shown, had been in the city for some time, in fact, was very hard up, while after it he was possessed of large sums. He variously explained these sums, but the jury was paid a saloon license of $200, he received a license for a food and drug store and paid the same, large and small amounts. The City Marshal testified to a conversation which he had with Baker and his mistress, Lou Thayer, who testified strongly to show that Baker was a saloon-keeper. The robbery and knowledge of the distribution of the money. This was shown by the testimony of the bills taken from Baker at the time of his arrest, it was also proved, were numbered down to the dollar, which was shown by the United States Treasury, and just as the bills were numbered down to the dollar, it was impossible that such bills could have been taken over the saloon counters as claimed by Myers Granted New Trial.

By Telegram to the Post-Dispatch.

Excessively late, but the News reached here this morning that the Supreme Court had granted Chas. Myers, the murderer of James Weir, a new trial. Myers is still in jail at Kansas City, and his accomplice, John Bogard, is in the penitentiary. The crime was committed at the Liberty Street Depot in this city on the night of January 2, 1888. The victim, James Weir, had arrived from the East, and was about to board a train for St. Louis, when Bogard and Myers, who were lurking around the station, killed him with a coupling pin taken from a car near by. Myers was arrested at St. Louis, and taken to Fort Leavenworth, where he enlisted in the regular army as a musician. He was arrested at Fort Leavenworth, and sentenced to be hanged on the 3d of last August, but a stay was granted and the case taken to the Supreme Court. Myers' main defense was insanity. Bogard, when arrested, turned State's evidence and was sentenced to life imprisonment for his part in being under him the death sentence was not passed on him, but he was given a life sentence.

It was amended by the insertion of a clause requiring the company to give a bond of $30,000, and also by adding clauses prohibiting the use of "T" rail and fixing the fare at 5 cents, with half rates for children. It was then passed by a vote of 10 to 2. At the next meeting, with the general understanding that it should then be made an ordinance, Edward Abend appeared before the council and announced that the Citizens' Electric Power Co. was ready to tender the city ten shares of its stock, according to agreement. The Council accepted the stock, and the company was appointed to the position of representative in the Board of Directors of the

She was picking coal from the ground when struck by a Burlington freight car backed by a steam and tunnel engine. The body was removed to the morgue, where it now remains awaiting identification. The deceased was a woman of about 50 years and apparently a German. She stood 5 feet 4 inches in height and weighed in the vicinity of 140 pounds. WASHINGTON, D. C., Dec. 3.—The Missouri Congress men, and others interested in securing the World Fair for St. Louis, were given instructions how to proceed at headquarters this morning. This was the result of the meeting of the delegation last evening at which were present all of the State delegation excepting Senators Vest and Cochrill. Besides there was J. G. Frather, Jos. Riskey, Judge Broadbux, ex-State Auditor Holliday, Judge Gottschalk, Maj. Stofor, John J. O'Neill and others. The instructions gave to each person one cue to follow, and a way to do it accompanied, so that no workings are working systematically.

This morning Gov. Collier was the recipient of a call from C. C. Hope Reed, a prominent London representative, who had visited St. Louis, and who was perfectly delighted with the fair and who believed it the site for the Fair. He sent a lot of letters to St. Louis, literature to England through the post office, and also to his agents at home.

With his usual sagacity ex-Congressman George R. Davis, who heads the Chicago Committee, has removed that city's headquarters from the front part of Willard's Hotel this morning to the parlors directly across the hall from those of St. Louis' where he proposes to keep an eye on whatever the St. Louisians do. The latter are scoring everybody opposed to them just now, and even the residents of the capital are being accused of being anti-fair. The energy and progress of the St. Louis advocates, says George Bernard Farrar, who will be Assistant Secretary of the Fair, is such that they can do anything out of the fair question, as he finds he cannot accomplish anything for himself just

FAVORED CRIMES.

The Lottery Men Are Notified of the Movements of the Police in Time to Escape Arrest.

How the Programme of Trials Is Laid Down by Lottery Men and Followed in the Courts.

Shaw, the Police Man, Was Notified That "Everything Was All Right" Before His Trial and His Release From Jail Followed—Herman Bruner and His Associates Warned of an Impending Raid in Time to Avoid Being Caught—How Mr. Dierkes' Loophole Warrant Worked.

THE lottery men are again enjoying that immunity from arrest and prosecution which for so long has made their business a safe and profitable one. They are not only protected from the public sentiment of the police but also from the police themselves.

The lottery men have told them that they must stop and in obedience to the command of their masters the police have stopped.

A LUCKY VENDOR.

Herman Bruner is one of the most notorious of the vendors, and his case serves to show how little need the lottery men have to fear the police, and why.

On the Friday following the first publication in the Post-Dispatch, November 15, the police made their first arrest. The lottery men had been holding meetings to decide what course they would pursue. With this course on, it was necessary that they should pull together and act in unison.

They separated and when the police arrived a few minutes later there was not a soul in the office but Bruner's clerk; all that was found in his possession was one ticket in a past drawing.

WHO NOTIFIED THE LOTTERY MEN OF THAT RAID?

Bruner is the head and front of the lottery men. He is the oldest of the operators. Why is he not arrested? He is not to be arrested? No one should know of that raid but the Chief of Police who ordered it and the officers who were assigned to it.

Which of them gave it away, and why has Bruner not been arrested since? The culpable neglect of the police and their determined refusal to do their plain duty proves that the lottery men were right when they declared that they were more powerful than the police.

The lottery ring has the city in its grip and the authorities dare not try to break their hold.

Their power extends not alone to the police authorities but over the court officials as well, and they dictate what shall be done with impudent assurance that their commands will be obeyed.

warrant let the defendant out, and again the lottery ring was sustained. Gilbert is one of the three men who have been publishing lottery advertisements for two years without interference or objection from the authorities. To publish or circulate a lottery advertisement is a misdemeanor and violation of the law, yet Gilbert has been permitted to continue these unlawful publications day after day and nothing was done though the police knew they were printed and knew they were unlawful. When they were forced to make the complaint, the only officer on duty, the entire force whose vicinity had been questioned was the one who was chosen to swear out the warrant, and Mr. Dierkes issued a warrant that was thrown out of court the moment it was questioned. With these impediments in the way of the administration of the law, there is little chance for the conviction of the lottery men and still less for them to pay the penalty after they are convicted.

THE PEKING UNIVERSITY.

AN ACCOUNT OF THE WORK WHICH IS OF INTEREST TO LOCAL METHODISTS.

How the Institution is Managed Under the Auspices of an American Mission—Some Interesting Views Which Arrived Too Late for the Methodist Extension Meeting—The Chinese Scholar and His Methods.

Rev. Marcus L. Tatt, who has been for many years a Methodist missionary to China, has been in the city recently attending the meeting of the Board of Church Extension. He has gone to Brooklyn, but after a brief stay in this country he will return to the Orient to resume his labors there. Since arriving in St. Louis, Mr. Tatt has heard from China, and received a copy of the Chinese Times, which contains a notice of the Peking University. This notice is of unusual interest as it gives much information as to the views of the Chinese and their criticism of the mission of the West.

published at Peking under date of October 12.

The prospectus of this institution shows it to be the natural development of the English Episcopal Mission in Peking, which was first founded in the Willy Institute and is now about to pass into the hands of the Chinese. The Peking University. The title is apt to strike those who hear it for the first time as ambitious and even audacious, but when calmly considered it is scarcely out of keeping with the general tone of the Chinese mind, and the only of undoubted superiority, but of the kind which is not to be envied.
